

Unlike public drinking water systems, private wells do not have experts regularly checking the water's source and its quality before it is sent to the tap.

Households that use private wells must take special precautions to ensure the safety of their drinking water.

Midwest Assistance Program, is a not for profit organization partnered with all of its affiliated organizations under the Rural Community Assistance Partnership (RCAP).

RCAP Partners on this program include University of Illinois, NEHA, NGWA, WSC, and 5 state well education programs (co-op extensions).
